

50 Organizations Discuss Part In Bond Drive

Representatives Hear Marine Auxiliary Director Speak

Ask any woman if she wouldn't rather buy a steel helmet for a marine than an Easter bonnet for herself.

This suggestion, made by Maj. Ruth Cheney Streeter, director of the Marine Corps Women's Reserve, was one of a number advanced to representatives of approximately 50 women's organizations who met at the YWCA yesterday to map plans for women's participation in the Treasury's second war loan drive.

Maj. Streeter, who was guest speaker at the luncheon, pointed out that the national goal for the Women's War Savings Committees in the current drive has been set in terms of paying full clothing and equipment costs for 2,000,000 enlisted men.

To know that the money invested in bonds will be used to buy a warm uniform or a woolen blanket means more to women than to discuss its value in terms of ammunition or mechanical equipment, she explained.

Mrs. O'Connor is chairman. The meeting was arranged by the women's division of the District War Savings Committee which is under the chairmanship of Mrs. John Jay O'Connor. Mrs. Howard Lee Nichols, vice chairman of the division, acted as presiding officer.

Although a $3,000,000 quota originally was assigned to the women's division here, the group volunteered to meet a $4,000,000 goal, Mrs. Nichols explained. All women's organizations will be urged to participate, she said. One of the ideas advanced is for women to form teams of five, each of which will be asked to see five friends.

A sale of War stampy corsages costing from $1 to $5 will be a special feature of the women's campaign. This activity is under the chairmanship of Mrs. Joseph T. Kelly, Jr., who also is division vice chairman of booths.

Mrs. Raymond Ewell told of training classes in War bond salesmanship open to interested volunteers and Mrs. David Craig reported on the success of the "buy a jeep" campaigns in the local schools.

Final Birth Reports. As war service chairman of the Women's Auxiliary of B'nai B'rith whose success on bond selling has been outstanding, Mrs. Nathan Hurwitz described some of the monthly projects which have been conducted by that organization.

In approaching hesitant buyers, Mrs. Hurwitz said, she emphasizes the difference between the monetary values as printed on the bonds and the human value represented by the sale. "It's not so much the interest on the security in the future which counts, but the security of the boys now," she declared.

Mrs. Clarence Aspinwall of the Colonial Dames reported that letters are being sent to members suggesting that they give $25 bonds toward a future building fund for the District organization.

Miss Winifred Burwell reported that the Zonta Club sold $30,000 worth of bonds this week.

Girl Scouts Sell Bonds. Mrs. Frank W. Milliken, deputy commissioner of the District Girl Scouts, said the girls are selling stamps and bonds every Saturday in neighborhood stores; that one troop is making corsages and that several are taking special training in public speaking.

Mrs. John H. Tolan reported on sales at the Statler Hotel by a group of congressional women. An educational campaign has been emphasized by the District Daughters of the American Revolution, according to Mrs. George B. Hartman, who estimated that DAR purchases had totaled about $600,000.

Others reporting on activities of their organizations included Mrs. Frank Borden of the District Parent-Teacher Association, Mrs. Ann Grambling of the American Legion Auxiliary, Miss Luella P. Chase of the Political Study Club, Mrs. Joseph A. Egan of the Social Union, Miss Amelia D. Kemp of Barney Neighborhood House, Miss Grace Burton of the Washington Club and Mrs. W. O. Gable of the Park View Women's Club.

All the club leaders were urged to see that purchases made by women are reported through the women's division.

Buy bonds. Give up that trip you had planned and give a bomber a trip to Tokyo.

Jeep Axle Plant Strike Called Off in Toledo

By the Associated Press. TOLEDO, Ohio, April 16.—A strike that halted assembly line production of Army jeeps was ended today.

Frank Rossiter, unit chairman of the CIO-United Automobile Workers at the Spicer Manufacturing Co. here, said 150 strikers voted last night to return to work and vote later on whether to ask the International UAW to authorize a strike.

The Spicer firm manufactures axles for jeeps assembled here at Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., and Joseph W. Frazer, president of Willys-Overland, said the one-day walkout at Spicer stalled his plant's assembly line and left 2,500 workers idle. He said production would be resumed Monday.

The walkout of employees in the heat-treating and forge departments grew out of a wage dispute that had been certified to the War Labor Board, R. E. Carpenter, Spicer's executive vice president, reported.

Union spokesmen said it stemmed from an attempt of non-production workers to enforce demands for bonuses.
